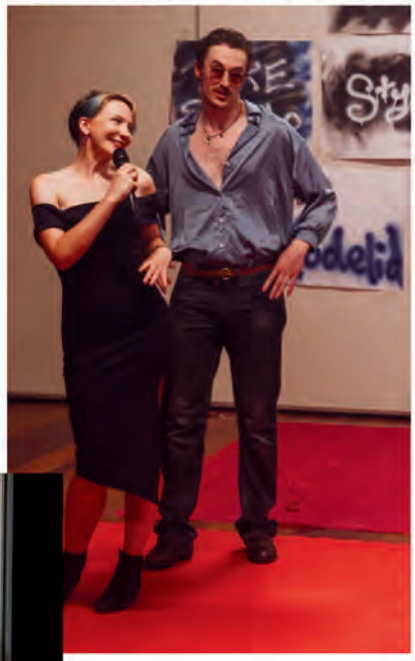
TARTU FASHION WEEK: ESTONIAN ELEGANCE OR FASHION FIASCO?

BY ANNA WINTOUR, FOR ESTONIAN VOGUE.



Greetings fashionistas and trendsetters. Welcome to Tartu Fashion Week, where runway meets "run away from that outfit". This event was a rollercoaster of style and eccentricity, with a healthy dose of Baltic charm.

The opening night kicked off with a bang as models strutted down the runway. We witnessed one brave model struggling to maintain balance in a potato sack and another sashayed in a sleeping bag. Who says you can't make a fashion statement from the comfort of your own bed?

"I AM EXCITED TO OFFER THESE ELANIKUD LEGITIMATE BUSINESS CONTRACT".

GUEST JUDGE, DIMITRI FROM RUSSIA.

One standout collection from Blue Village, "Eesti Etnofashion", featured a touch of Baltic eccentricity. Picture vanaema-chic meets glam rock, complete with suspender vöös and rahvariided mini skirts.

Designers from ABC (Anything But Clothes) ingeniously repurposed items found at camp. Who knew that your tare's shower curtain could be the next big thing? The fashion-forward crowd sported everything from trash to balloon headwear to outfits that screamed, "did you raid the A-Grupp Boys closet?"

Tartu has proven once again that fashion is subjective, and confusion is always in vogue.

Sip & Paint with Liisa

In a cozy studio in Blue Village, a group of ladies gathered to paint a nude canvas, each sip of their drinks adding to the lively atmosphere. Laughter filled the room as they embraced the joy of self-expression, creating art without inhibition. The strokes on their canvases mirrored the spirit of the moment, a celebration of creativity and companionship that transcended age, proving that the joy of painting and sipping drinks knows no bounds.
